SUSTAINABILITY, MOBILITY AND IDENTITY

Sustainability, Mobility and Identity are without doubt the most critical and influential factors in shaping government policies and determining how buildings of tomorrow are designed and constructed. They are currently, the three critical considerations faced by architects, designers, planners, city-builders and governments worldwide. As an architect, planner, policy maker, or as someone who is acutely aware of the world around us, the UIA Regional Forum will be most educational and essential for your continuous professional development.

International Union of Architects (UIA), an international organisation founded in Lausanne in 1948, represents over a million architects throughout the world through national architectural associations that form the 92 UIA Member Sections. The UIA organises international congresses every 3 years all over the world.

Inaugural UIA Regional Forum

The UIA Regional Forum 2004 is the very first of its kind to be organised for the international architectural community, especially UIA Region IV members, to gather and discuss issues pertinent to the Asia Pacific region and focused on Sustainability, Mobility and Identity. This inaugural conference organised and hosted by Singapore Institute of Architects and Reed Exhibitions will take place in Singapore this October.

UNIQUELY Singapore

Sustainability of our living environment is one of the key focus at the inaugural UIA Regional Forum 2004, which makes it significant to hold the event at the newly opened Biopolis.

About the Venue BIOPOLIS

Biopolis is a 185,000 sqm research complex housing key biomedical research institutes and biotech companies. It comprises a cluster of seven buildings, that spearheaded innovation in environment performance and sustainability through eco-friendly initiatives such as a Pneumatic Waste Conveyance System, a District Cooling System (DCS), Energy-saving Architecture, Intelligent Building Automation Systems and others.

Being one of the most conducive, integrated and interactive environments in the world to nurture the growth of Biomedical Sciences, it is naturally an interesting place for world-class city planners, architects, and industry professionals to network, exchange ideas and share best practices.

The UIA Regional Forum 2004 will be held in their 500-seater auditorium, together with a table-top exhibition.
