SENSITIVE DESIGN AND DEVELOPMENT – AN INDUSTRY GUIDE OF GOOD PRACTICES TO MINIMISE WALL-LIKE DEVELOPMENTS REGISTRATION FORM

4 March 2010, 10.30am – 12.00pm (Registration starts at 10.00am)

Singapore is a city state with a large population and limited land resources. With our population projected to increase to 6.5 million by 2050, the built environment will also become denser. In the context of rising density, if developments are not sensitively designed, they could seriously affect our cityscape. To continue to preserve the quality of our built environment, the industry has jointly worked out a new framework to encourage sensitive design to minimise wall-like developments. In this seminar, we will introduce the framework and share the views of the various industry professionals involved in the study.
