SYNOPSIS

Peter Hunt read Environmental Engineering at the University of Nottingham. He recently arrived in Singapore where he is part of the National Parks Board's efforts to encourage the adoption of skysire greenery across the island.

"Green Roof Incentive Scheme"

NParks has introduced the Green Roof Incentive Scheme to encourage owners of existing buildings to green their rooftops. The talk will focus on the growing environmental trend in architecture and how architects can tap into the scheme to enhance their projects.

Ms. Goh Siam Imm will give a brief updates of the changes on the BP/TOP/CSC requirements since 2006. She will also highlight some of the non-compliances that led to some re-work on site and in worse scenarios, complaints by building owners or subsidiary purchasers.

To ensure proper implementation of design on site, it is important that the QP produce a good set of working drawings. A good set of working drawings is one that gives clear direction to the contractor on site. Often, we hear that changes have to made on site to comply regulations and codes. Changes on site may delay project completion time and at times lead to poor workmanship.
