SYNOPSIS

Living Wall systems are gaining popularity and finding their way into today's urban landscape where space is a constraint. They bring about environmental and aesthetic benefits, but are also prone to failure if the critical factors for success are not considered by owners, architects and landscapists during the specification and design stages. This seminar aims to provide an overview of the critical factors for the successful specification, installation and maintenance of Living Wall systems.

Presentation Topics

The speakers will first shed light on the different types of system currently available in the market and the safety considerations for installation of a living wall system. They will then present the finer points on living wall design, installation and maintenance, with focus on planting media, irrigation, indoor lighting and plant selection.

Learning Objectives

1. Understand the different types of living wall system available in the market
2. Understand the critical factors for the design, installation and maintenance of different types of living wall system
3. Understand the safety considerations for selection of living wall system
