

Wall Coating Product Presentation

The elements and environmental influences have exacted much toll and damage to many an otherwise beautiful facades of buildings created through the pains-taking creations of designers and architects so much so the fabric of the building is reduced to deterioration and unsightliness, let alone waste and money. Often paints that dress the buildings have not been properly selected to suit the different climatic conditions that prevail in each region. Paints can be attacked by physical, chemical and biological agents. And basically there are two types of paint-organic or inorganic. Each has its own characteristics and performance. When to use what and why? Questions are being constantly asked. Such environmental awareness has prompted much eagerness to know more about such issues and to appreciate the advantages and disadvantages that can be derived from the use of different paints. It is with this objective in mind that we would like to share our knowledge and experience with participants through this seminar.

Outline:

- 1) Types of Mineral Paint-Mineral Silicate & Mineral Silicate Paint with Siloxane.
- 2) Advantages of each-Non film forming & Water repellent.
- 3) Application method.

Mr. Gino Kuipers, age 48, is a coating engineer with a Professional qualification in Coating Technology.

His working experience: 30 years: 25 years in colour pigments & tinting systems in an international company and 5 years with Mapei S.p.A, a 76-year-old building materials producer of worldwide fame. In Mapei, Mr. Kuipers is responsible for the development and growth of Mapei's Coating Line business worldwide. He shares his expertise with players of the coating industry by conducting seminars on wall coating systems, product and application demonstration and trainings. Widely travelled and exposed, countries he has travelled for his mission include Europe, Middle East, Asia, and USA. His market exposure, coupled with his vast knowledge and experience in the fields of pigments and wall coatings, makes him a force to be reckoned with. Many building facades in Italy and abroad bear his mark and contributions.

In the upcoming event, Mr. Gino will take you on a journey to expound his areas of expertise and experience. The different types of mineral wall coating products will be explained and shown with visual aids and actual samples for you to see and touch. Abundant reading materials will be given out as well. The 'whys', the 'hows', the 'whens' will unfold.
