

SIA Professional Knowledge Series: Living Space & Building Space

Living Space – Katrin Foerster

It is a law of nature that, after securing livelihood, all humans strive for safety and comfort in their homes and living spaces. It has always been that way and it is not a unique sign of our times! But the significant difference today is the extremely fast development of new technologies that completely change our idea and perception of what comfort in our homes and living spaces means to us. This trend thrives on. It is driven by the vast technological progress of products in electrification, building automation, connectivity and certainly by the beauty of their design. Let us be inspired.

Building Space – Samson Ho

The commercial and industrial building market is a very dynamic environment. Building owners and operators need to optimize energy consumption, decrease operational and maintenance costs, so that building occupants benefit from comfort, security, and lower utility bills. And with local and federal regulators introducing more energy codes and standards means that building automation becomes more important than ever.
