What is Architectural Specifier Market (ASM)?

Co-organised by Singapore Institute of Architects (SIA) and TAC-Group Pte Ltd (TAC), the Architectural Specifier Market (ASM) is a 2-day Business to Business event, comprising of 2 Architectural Technical Seminars and 2 afternoons of Thematic Business Matching Meetings. The seminars provide an overview of the critical considerations for project specifications while the Business Meetings allow the Architecture Firms and Building Specialists to discuss in depth of the project specification's needs and product technical specifications in a face to face setting.

This is the only architecture specific event which effectively allows business discussion in private under a pro business environment.

How It Works

- ASM comprises of 2 sessions of Architectural Technical Seminar and 18 Thematic Business Matching Meetings:
 - ▶ Seminar – Provides an overview of the critical considerations for project specifications.
 - ▶ Business Meeting – Allow the Architecture Firms and Building Specialists to discuss in depth of the project's needs and product technical specifications in the Arc-Suite.
- Participation by 50 - 60 Architecture Firms with upcoming projects. Estimated project value of more than $150 million.
- Participation by a maximum of 50 building specialists with relevant products matching to the project's needs. Limited to 2 representatives/ company.
- Building Specialists will be able to make appointments with the participating Architecture Firms via the business matching portal before the event. Project specification needs and building typologies will be listed in the portal.
- The Architecture Firms will accept the meeting requests via the same portal.
- Meetings will be held in the Arc-Suite during the event.
- Each Architecture Firms will be allocated with an Arc-suite. This is to ensure substantial level of privacy and conduciveness for the meetings to take place. Each suite will be equipped with LED screen to facilitate presentation.
