Synopsis

The construction industry is one of the most significant industries that is both economically and socially important. It also has a significant impact on the health and safety of its workers. In Singapore, workers in the construction industry perform a diverse range of activities which generally involve much risks, both to themselves, the organisation, as well as the community. As such, the frequency and severity of accidents in the industry continue to be a challenge.

Total Workplace Safety and Health (Total WSH) is a key foundation for a safer, healthier and productive workforce. Employers who incorporate Total WSH into their operations will therefore benefit from the enhanced health, safety, well-being of their workforce, resulting in higher productivity.

The aim of this Conference is to provide a platform to share and learn about good WSH industry practices by looking into various factors, such as the latest technological advances and fatigue management methods that may impact the industry. This Conference will also provide you with the opportunity to network with construction safety professionals, technical experts, regulators and executives to exchange new ideas and concepts in the construction eco-system.

Who Should Attend

WSH Professionals, developers, main contractors, sub-contractors, professional engineers, resident technical officers, safety consultants, and construction industry professionals.
